3. Chairman Harris requested that the representatives from P&N Consulting provide an overview to the Commissioners on the services that they provide. Chairman Harris asked a question regarding change management. The representatives replied when you talk about change management you want to address what have you done recently to either make improvements or address issues within your organization and why was it done, when it was done and how will it impact your future? It’s always about future growth and making sure, that your organization is sustainable and that you’re reaching, growing, and evolving into what you want to be according to your plan. That involves change, tremendous change for your employees and a big part of that speaks to the culture of your organization and what kind of communication is involved within your employees; not only internal employees, as your customers, but your external customers because if that message is handled correctly and the communication is good, solid, and transparent it will go outside of these walls and that impacts the community you serve. The feedback that you get outside of the community comes into these walls and that impacts whether the change is going to be successful. So, it’s all about making sure that everyone is on the same page at all times in the process. There is always going to be bumps in the road and potholes that are going to be huge, but if everybody’s knows where they are, and everybody understands that our goal is to get to the other side. If we all want to get to the other side we can get there, we just have to figure out a way to do it to where we can carry everybody with us. It’s all about making sure that the message stays the same for the entire group from the top down to the bottom up. So, there are a lot of developmental opportunities, coaching opportunities, working with individuals who are in management who are in dual roles who might not be comfortable with some of the change that’s coming across. In keeping the message, the same, you have to do something differently. Some people need face-to-face meetings, some people do better in teams and committee groups, some people are very visual it’s all about addressing everyone’s needs when there is change going on. Commissioner Martin asked what made their company unique to qualify to instruct an organization such as this. The consultants stated that within our core team, Human Resources team, we have about forty-five (45) years of experience from down in the trenches all the way up to executive management, and board responsibilities. They continued, outside of the HR service line, and within the rest of consulting we have experience that is off the charts with everything from healthcare to governmental, to public to private, to non-profit. Additionally, we have attorneys, pension fund management, we have everything in our firm so when we are working with an organization we try to do it from a very broad lens. Also, because we are a public accounting firm we have to adhere to AICPA Standards on service so in comparison to a consulting firm that is not inside a CPA firm we have a higher level of standards both from an ethics standpoint and an oversight and management on how we make decisions and give opinions. So, all of our folks are trained, certified, active, credentialled, they participate in their professions so when we show up, depending on what the need is and how we want to help an organization improve, we come with a diverse set of individuals and that diversity in how we deliver services, as well as, the standards is what differentiates us. Commissioner Bernard asked if they were going to do a survey or speak to everyone from the CEO down in the organization. The consultants stated that depends entirely on you. Very seldom do we do a survey or interview everyone at the same level. It depends on what your challenges are, and we would make a recommendation on how we would approach it. Sometimes it’s a global survey of all employees, sometimes it’s a survey plus individual interviews to get different perspectives, so there are a number of ways to tackle that challenge. Commissioner Wright stated that he noticed that they had a branch office in Baton Rouge and asked if they would have a local address in the Jackson municipal area or in Jackson. They stated that they do not. Their main office is in Baton Rouge and they have an office in New Orleans and six (6) other locations; and work virtually in those locations. There were no additional questions. Chairman Harris thanked the consultants and stated that the Board would definitely very much consider working with the group and in getting us through a point in our organization where we have definitely experienced a lot of change in the past six (6) months. She continued that one thing we want to see is the overall health of the organization and Monday we will make the decision to bring you on. She then asked if there were any additional questions. There were none.
